Space, Territory, and Territoriality - Claude Raffestin, 2012 Space, from a territorial perspective, is the result of historical interactions between socio-economic forces governing access to natural resources. Space, territory, and territoriality Territoriality is a term associated with nonverbal communication that refers to how people use space to communicate ownership or occupancy of areas and possessions. The anthropological concept branches from the observations of animal ownership behaviors. Personal space can be regarded as a bubble with a person at the center, forming an area which the person does not wish to be invaded. An example of demonstrating territoriality might be the car size. Driving a large truck like the Ford F-350 mig Territoriality (nonverbal communication) - Wikipedia Dahlman 2009, in keeping with much of the literature, limits the focus to territory as the spatial extent of the state and territoriality as a strategy used by states. For all that territorialization and territoriality might appear central to political geography, few textbooks in that subject area deal with it explicitly, Cox 2002 being one of the few exceptions. Territory and Territoriality - Geography - Oxford ...Territoriality refers to the monopolization of space by an individual or group. While territories have been defined variously as any defended space, areas of site-specific dominance, or sites of exclusive monopolization of space, they can be quite fluid and short-term. Animal
